Venturer Settles into Role in Ghana
by Sabrina Haynes

Sabrina Haynes is a Venturer from Westhunt Church, Richmond, who currently serves in Ghana in support of More Than Nets. She’ll serve there until April 2016, helping Emmanuel “Muss” Mustapha in the Yendi region. She wrote the following article describing her experiences so far.

I arrived in Ghana with a Virginia Baptist mission team already scheduled, and I loved getting to know everyone on the team. God used them in amazing ways during the week, and I was blessed to be part of some of their work.

All my bags made it to Accra, the capital city, but then two of them got stuck for several days, including all my clothes and shoes. I had one change of clothes, which was all I really needed, but the shoes I had with me were not good for the dry, dusty climate of Yendi! God does make sure we have all we need, though, and my bags arrived a few days later. It is over 95 degrees every day here with only about 20% humidity, so I am drinking a lot of water!

While I was working with the mission team in Yendi, we got to witness God doing amazing things for his people. We distributed mosquito nets to prevent malaria, planted new churches, and assisted with baptisms of new believers.

About 500 people said, “Yes, I will follow Jesus,” 11 new churches were planted, 3,000 mosquito nets were distributed, and over 300 people were baptized in the river.

Wow—God is good all the time!
