Springtime Is a Great Time for Ministry on Campus

Taylor Terrill, associate Kairos collegiate/young adult minister at Virginia Tech, shares one of the most recent ways their BCM has reached out and ministered to students on campus this spring:

Each semester we try to creatively engage with students on campus. One of the ways we do this is through proxy stations, or surveys. We think of an engaging question, paint interactive boards, and reserve a spot on campus to survey students as they pass by.

This spring we asked “What are you struggling with?” and “How do you cope with it?” This gives us opportunities to have intentional conversations, make connections, and invite students to BCM. We found it very sobering to read through the answers students gave. While many focused on exams and tests, there were several centered on shame, depression, and doubt.
Will you join me and take a moment to pray for Virginia Tech students? Many are being crushed by the idol of grades and excelling in school. Pray they will experience the peace of Christ amidst the many challenges of college.

To learn more about Baptist Collegiate Ministries, visit KairosInitiative.org.

For more information about Kairos Initiative, contact:
Welford Orrock
Kairos Initiative/Young Adult Coordinator
Baptist General Association of Virginia
800.255.2428, ext. 2246
welford.orrock@bgav.org